The Academy New Scholar Award recognizes outstanding scholarly contributions to the study of crime and/or criminal justice by someone who has received his/her most recent doctoral degree within the past six (6) years. Scholarly contributions include, but are not limited to, books, articles, book chapters, reviews, technical reports, grants, or papers to scholarly associations.

To be eligible for this award, the person must be:

1. Nomination(s) by at least one (1) other member(s) of the Academy.
2. Submit current vita for review by the subcommittee.
3. Submit up to four works (articles, book, book chapters etc.) for review by the subcommittee. Please batch nominations for the nominee from colleagues at the same institution into one nomination packet, if possible.
4. Be a current member of ACJS and an untenured faculty member.
